Transgender Business-Job Superbook

Synopsis

The twelve volumes of this book to help the GLBTQ community find jobs and do business are as follows: Volume 1. Gay Business-Job Guide Volume 2. Gay Resources/ Lesbian Resources Volume 3. Minority Business-Job Guide Volume 4. World Culture/ People of the World Volume 5. Women's Job-Business Guide Volume 6. Youth Business, Money & Life Volume 7. Young Adults, College Students Looking for Work Volume 8. Older People Job Guide Volume 9. Internship Basics Volume 10. Company Addresses/ Corporate Websites Volume 11. Investigating Companies & People Volume 12. Investigating People For Business, Work, Relationship, Etc. This book contains the gay and lesbian job and business websites that exist as well as general gay resources. I noticed that virtually every college has a good general gay resource center and at its career center has some local websites and information for gays looking for jobs so I included all that information here from my young people job and business superbook. Other than that, just be yourself. Most bosses are looking for good workers. They don't care about anything else. Technically, transgender people cannot be discriminated against in searching for a job or in the job but in reality they often are. How do you prove it. The other issue is privacy. A transgendered person does not have to reveal that they had a sex change to the employer. It's always hard times everywhere for most professions and unskilled workers for a number of reasons like: automation oversupply of skilled workers in most fields corporations move to the cheapest place as the result of free trade agreements our money masters squeeze the money supply to make money scarce and cause austerity because this gives them more control over the unruly masses At the same time, it's like Charles Dickens said in the first sentence of A Tale of Two Cities, these are the best of times and the worst of times. If you're motivated, upbeat, confident, believe you have worthy skills and are relentless in your pursuit of a job in your field or any unskilled job, you'll find one because the unwritten rule of the work world is that every boss is always looking for a new good worker. If you show up everyday knocking on doors looking for work, you'll get a job. You might not get one if you send out resumes and application forms on the internet and wait. People like people who show up, ask to meet the boss then ask face-to-face if there are any jobs. They might be caught off guard but they'll remember you when an opening comes up. There are at least 30 or more career aptitude tests out there, some for free and some charging $50 or more claiming to be able to give you a good feel for what your career aptitude is. I don't go for tests much because you are already what you are in your soul. Tests might measure what you're good at but not what you like to do naturally. That's why I'm telling you not to let yourself get brainwashed into a career when they give you an aptitude test somewhere like at a government career center or in the military. Stick to your guns as to what you want to do. The biggest thing in life for most people aside from personal relationships and health is to earn a living. This comes down to several things: 1.) Education, skill 2.) Your ability to know where to look for the jobs 3.) Your ability to be nice around people 4.) Your ability to show up everyday 5.) Your ability to do what you're told 6.) The brownnose factor, how to play job politics 7.) Your motivation and desperation for work These are all huge areas. I cover them all somewhere through all these job superbooks. At the library, related books are at: jobs, #331 college, career education, #378 looking for a job, job prep, #650.14 or HF5382 business books, #650-659 money, #332 companies, #338 Go to bls.gov for lots of free career descriptions.
