A boy, a girl, and a dog share the joys of summer-swimming, fishing, gardening, watching fireworks, chasing butterflies, and toasting marshmallows-in this newly recolorized backlist classic.

Alice Low is a noted anthologist and the author of many books for children. She lives in Sleepy Hollow, New York. Roy McKie is the illustrator of many books, among them Ten Apples on Top, My Book About Me, I Can Write!, and The Pop-Up Mice of Mr. Brice by Dr. Seuss writing as Theo. LeSieg. He lives in Flemington, New Jersey. --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

Absolutely beautiful illustrations and the rhythmic words capture every aspect of summer from my childhood. They touch on s'mores, hay rides, fire flies, watermelon, fireworks, fishing, bike riding, the ice cream man, and more!

My fav as a kid and now my daughters fav. A delightful little book about cute kids and their dog enjoying everything in summer!

I had this book when I was a kid and bought for my child.

Cute!

I originally came across the board book in a store and bought it because I remember reading this book as a child. I thought I was losing my memory when I remembered pages that weren't in the board book. I looked it up on , and quickly found that the board book was a condensed version of this, the regular version. I went ahead and ordered this version-- and I love it. The cadence of the book makes it really fun to read aloud to my little kids, and the pictures are bright and engaging. We have a ton of books, but this one is one of our favorites.

Read this to my kids, lots, back in the 70s & we all enjoyed it ...then we lost it & I tried for ages to find another copy [nostalgia !]...it was out of print for quite a while I understand ...so we are all thrilled to see it again ...thanks ...

We enjoyed relating to the things mentioned in the book. We also liked the rythm and ryhme of his book!

For some reason, some of the pages from the original are not in this edition of the book. Weird.
